REAR ADMIRAL NOYES, OF ILL-FATED "WASP", REPORTED "SAFE"; JAPANESE AND AMERICANS SPAR FOR A KNOCK-OUT

Mounting Losses of Both Sides Could Upset Balance of Power in Pacific—Advantage Remains with Japanese, But Report Shows They Have Slowed Down

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The Navy Department today officially announced that Rear Admiral Leigh Noyes, who was aboard the U. S. S. Carrier Wasp, when she was torpedoed and sunk September 25th, is "safe."

Beyond briefly stating that the Admiral had not been lost, and was now "safe," the Navy refused to add to the previous admission that the Admiral was aboard the carrier when it was torpedoed by the Japanese.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(INS)—Although mounting Japanese and American naval losses could upset the balance of power in the Pacific, developments in the Solomons battle today showed that both sides still were sparring in the hope of landing a knockout blow.

In view of powerful Japanese concentrations the advantage remained with the enemy but latest dispatches

Fuel Oil Dealers Must Continue Special Discounts

A warning was issued today by the Bucks County War Price and Rationing Board, that special discounts allowed by fuel oil dealers for cash payment, quantity purchase, or other considerations during the period from October 1 to 15, 1941, must be continued under the OPA price regulation which fixes maximum prices for fuel oil.

Local boards and OPA offices have received numerous complaints from consumers, alleging that dealers have discontinued the discounts formerly allowed. As a result, he said, letters reminding dealers of the provision covering discounts and calling for a report from each dealer on his practice have been sent to dealers throughout Pennsylvania by Robert J. Callaghan, chief enforcement attorney of the State OPA.

These letters point out that the discounts allowed during the base period must, in the case of sales under the same circumstances or to the same class of buyers, be deducted from the maximum price established in the fuel oil price schedule.

For example, the present ceiling price for No. 2 fuel oil, which is the grade usually used by home-owners, is 8.7 cents per gallon. If, during the base period, a dealer allowed customers of a particular class a discount for cash amounting to one-fourth cent per gallon, he must deduct that amount on cash sales to such customers. His ceiling price for such sales of No. 2 fuel oil then would be 8.45 cents per gallon.

Ragnoli along with Edward Moore, Pond street, broke into the garage in the rear of the Greenlee residence, 309 Walnut street and took ration stamps out of Miss Greenlee's car.

SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION PROBLEMS DISCUSSED

A. Kurtz King, Bensalem Sup't, Gives Classification Talk for Rotarians

TELLS OF THE NEEDS

ANDALUSIA, Oct. 29.—A classification talk by A. Kurtz King, superintendent of Bensalem Township public schools, was presented for members of Bensalem Rotary Club on Tuesday evening.

Mr. King's subject was "Lesser Known Facts About School Administration." Considering school administration first as a business, the speaker told that current expenses of Bensalem school district for the past fiscal year reached $91,800.

One perpetual problem, stated the superintendent, is how tax money can be applied to the best advantage. "It is particularly vexing in sight of the fact that the purchasing power of the dollar is diminishing," he added. The enrollment in September, 1942, was 38 more than in September of the year previous, it was pointed out, with 30 of these pupils being in the high school bracket.

Secondly, the volume of work on records, reports and various state applications was cited as a sizeable task. In the third place, continued Mr. King, there is the challenge of keeping up with what is new in methods, materials and equipment.

24 Women Register For Course in Home Nursing

Twenty-four women applied for entry last evening in the new course in home nursing which opened at the community house.

Mrs. Louise Lohr, R. N., is the instructor of this group which is to meet each Wednesday evening at 7.30. Previous announcement by the Red Cross gave the meeting night incorrectly as Thursday. The course will be two hours each Wednesday for a period of 12 to 15 weeks. In order to secure their certificates students are not permitted to miss more than two sessions.

A course, now well under way is in charge of Mrs. Wayne Fahringer, R. N., this group meeting each Thursday at seven o'clock in the community house.

BUCKS CO. SECURES 4,865,000 POUNDS OF METAL DURING DRIVE

Bristol Borough's Total, State County Officials, Is 1,390,000 Pounds

BRISTOL TWP., 424,000

Approximately $23,000 Will Be Received From Sale of Scrap

Bucks County's contribution to the war effort through the scrap metal drive, according to James B. Fretz, general chairman for the county is 4,865,000 pounds.

Of this amount, which averages 48 pounds of scrap per person, Bristol borough's donation was 1,390,000 pounds; and that of Bristol township, 424,000 pounds, according to Mr. Fretz. Bristol's figure, it is said, includes scrap donated by industrial firms.

Figures for a number of other districts in the county are: Morrisville borough and Falls township, 336,000 lbs.; Langhorne borough and Middletown township, 76,000 lbs.; Doylestown borough, 382,000 lbs.; Quakertown, 230,000 lbs.; Bensalem township, 200,000 lbs.; Hulmeville borough, 30,000 lbs.; Tullytown borough, 100,000 lbs.

The average of 48 pounds per person in the county is considered as "very good" by officials, although it is low in comparison with Pennsylvania's average of 100 pounds per person.

The contribution of Bucks County will net approximately $23,000 it is said, the money being used in most instances for defense work.

In many of the communities of the county school scrap piles added much to the boroughs' or townships' totals, the pupils carrying items to school during the campaign. Boy Scouts, in

Allied Troops Beat Off Axis Counter-Attack in Egypt

Cairo.—An Axis counter-attack against positions captured by Britain's Eighth Army in the Egyptian desert has been beaten off successfully and the Allied troops are continuing strong assaults against the Germans and Italians, a Middle East high command communique said today.

No large-scale armored action was reported since considerable numbers of British and Axis tanks clashed on Tuesday but minor tank engagements continued throughout the battle area, the high command said. Damage was inflicted on the Axis tank patrols.

The communique said ceaseless aerial assaults were being made both day and night against Axis air fields in the desert, keeping Nazi General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel constantly on the defensive.

German and Italian troop concentrations were blasted from the air "with good results," the announcement from Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander's headquarters said.

Torpedo-carrying aircraft struck and sank a large Axis tanker which was discovered heading for the North African coast. Heavy Allied bombers conducted a strong attack against enemy airdromes on the island of Crete.

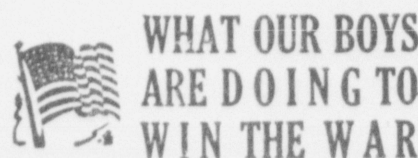

Americans Bomb Japanese Base at Lashio

Chungking.—American B-25 bomber planes with a fighter escort carried out a heavy attack on the Japanese base at Lashio at the terminus of the Burma Road, it was announced today.

A communique disclosed that the bombers, in attacking the enemy airdrome, scored a direct hit on an anti-aircraft battery as well as hits on a small hangar and the dispersal area. One runway was damaged.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire was encountered but all the planes returned safely to their bases.

DEFEATING JAPAN

Ray Cronley, who covered Japanese economic developments for the Wall Street Journal for a number of years, was interned in Tokyo at the outbreak of the war and only recently returned home with other American repatriates, lists Japan's weaknesses as follows:

Shortages of iron, copper, lead, zinc and proteins.

Extended shipping lines and poor railroads which can be attacked to snarl transportation.

Inability to get along with conquered peoples. Overwillingness to sacrifice men in gaining victory.

The Japanese people, says Cronley, are susceptible to disease, their routine mind is unable to adjust itself to new situations and they are suspicious, tricky, flashy, inconsistent. They are overconfident in a victorious phase and likely to overplay their hand.

None of these factors is seen by Mr. Cronley as likely to assure a short war in the Pacific unless America presses a blockade and knowledge of other Jap weaknesses to the utmost. He believes that a smarter approach than the one by the way of the Solomons and New Guinea is called for.

The Aleutians constitute the greatest water. This writer thinks that by pushing west along the Kuriles, Amur, and the 900 miles of Tokyo and Osaka, the leading planes of the United States could blockade Japan so that her war effort would be brought to a halt in a few weeks.

WOOL PROSPECTS

Due to shipping shortage charges, there are coming to cloth manufacturing industries using wool. The Army and Navy are taking at least 100,000,000 pounds more wool than the United States is producing. Next year the deficit will be more than 200,000,000 pounds. Australia appears to be out of the picture as a feasible source of supply and America can not now command the merchant ships to draw off Australia's stocks.

There is a surplus of 560,000,000 pounds of wool in the United States and this will be eked out by cutting down civilian supplies. In October the government allowed wool textile mills 10 per cent of the quantity of high grade clothing wool for civilians as a year ago. The worsted mills were allowed 20 per cent of the quantity of wool they used in April, 1941. Elimination of inconsequential in clothing such as trousers cuffs will save 50,000,000 pounds. The Army and the Navy are dropping cloth standards to save more ed on the list were four pianos, old automobiles and bathtubs.

The drive, under the direction of the teachers of the Morrisville school district got under way October 19th, when the students made a door-to-door canvass announcing the campaign. On Tuesday at noon the collections began, and each student bringing in scrap was given a small orange tag to wear. For Wednesday morning a larger orange tag was given, with a still larger yellow tag for the afternoon. Finally, on Thursday morning the energetic youngsters were proudly displaying a huge pink tag with the words, "I collected scrap. Did you?" written on them.

The people of the town went "all-out" for the youngsters and turned over their attics and cellars to the busy workers. Trucks were donated by business firms.

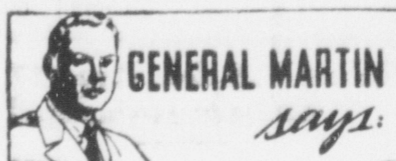

The success of the drive can be seen with two scrap piles at the high school and one each at William E. Case and Manor Park schools.

"I believe in the right of labor to organize and to bargain collectively. I believe in mutual accord between worker and employer. I say that both are patriotic and ready to do everything to win this war. They know what threatens them and every one of us. I have visited the great and the little war plants of Pennsylvania, and in them I have seen no unwilling workmen, and have not found one industrialist who is not putting his heart into our effort.

"These workmen and their bosses want this war ended, and they want it to end with victory. And they may be assured that we will, in the words of our platform, encourage sympathy, understanding, confidence and cooperation between employee and employer, and will make government the impartial friend of both. We hold that this is the way to win the war, and also to win the war after the war."

practice at that edifice for a time will be to have different speakers each Sunday. The Rev. Oxford had been pastor there for nearly four years it is stated. His hope is in Philadelphia. The Grace Gospel Church, as well as Oakhurst Chapel, is undenominational. A spokesman for the new group stated yesterday that it is hoped in time to secure a permanent church home.

other instances, also added greatly to the piles of scrap. Residents of Bucks County, men, women, and children, turned in with a will when a plea was made for scrap metal to aid the war effort. Women searched attics and closets for every available piece of metal not needed or in use; while the men of the households added to the tonnage by donations from their workshops and cellars. Girls and boys added metal toys, and other materials they found in their search of piles of trash.

The piles, placed at curb lines and along highways in the many districts, grew and grew, with the result that the county total passed the 2,432 ton mark.

materials, equipment, etc. "Also," it was added, "present and coming challenges, such as rationing, victory corps program, and the like, present a problem. Fourthly, a pressing question facing Bensalem Township is the building need. In the first grade in Cornwells building there are 49 children for one teacher, when 20 to 25 is considered as an ideal sized group. Bensalem's seventh grade has 109 pupils taught in two sections, because class rooms are not available to divide the group. The shop and home economics needs are glaring ones at Bensalem high school; while building now during war-time is impossible."

A number of questions were asked of Mr. King by club members. S. Penn Salmon presided at the meeting.

GIRL IN THE GREEN COAT by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

"So you thought it was I, all this time! Ever since Tuesday night when you saw me in that green coat! Thank you, Mr. Hall! Thank you very much! Now if you'll just tell me whom I'm shielding—"

"I wish I knew."

"You don't STILL think it was me!" I cried.

"I told you I didn't. I'm simply trying to make you see we've got to find out who had that coat of yours. Now let's take the women in the building again—just for luck, Miss Martin—"

"She never even borrowed an egg from us. What's more she's got a stock of fancy negligees to sell. And if you think that Gil Castle was dating that spinster of indeterminate age—"

"O.K. She's out. The same applies to Madame Hurd, and Mrs. Strom. Now we come back to the possibilities, Mrs. Utz, not unattractive and young, Mrs. Raymond ditto, Miss Hudson ditto, and Miss Driscoll—in fact I still think you're the most likely of the lot—more Castle's style than any of them," he said, his eyes twinkling.

"Didn't I tell you Mr. Castle was not party to my schoolgirl crush?" I still couldn't mention it without my cheeks flaming. After keeping it to myself for five years, it was still embarrassing to have to admit it. "And anyway," I said, "it wouldn't have been much of a tryst with me in a moving picture theatre downtown—as I can prove."

"O.K. We scratch the Driscoll, too. Now we're down to Hudson and Raymond and Utz. Let's work on Utz next. Think she cheats on her husband?"

"I wouldn't blame her if she did. But they're supposed to have worked together that night. She mounts his photographs for him you know, and does some retouching. If they're in it, they're in it together, and in the light of what we know about them, and her worry that her night might be involved it doesn't seem very likely."

"And as for Peg, I told you she couldn't get into a dress of mine. Besides she's not much on secrets and if she were carrying on a clandestine affair with somebody, I think I'd have known about it. She never got any mysterious telephone calls and her boy friends all came right up to the studio to meet her."

"That leaves Raymond," Chris said.

"Yes, and with her it's about the same as with Mrs. Utz, she's so anxious to keep her former husband out of it. And if Gil Castle was going with her, I know we'd have seen them together, for we pass her door every time we go up or downstairs. And if it were a first meeting she wouldn't have picked a night when she was running a temperature and looked a sight. I know more about women than that."

"And it wasn't a first meeting. It was to break off an old affair. Gil Castle told me that. But to get back to the housecoat. She could have worn it. We know that because she did wear it, the very next day. And if there was anything between them, we have a possible motive, with the jealous husband—"

"But you SAID you didn't think Pete did it!" I cried, for I thought this was ONE thing on which Chris and I were thoroughly agreed.

"I know. And I don't think he did, either. I'm just trying to piece this together somehow."

"Then don't piece Emilie into it. She had the flu."

"She might have been faking."

"Then she's faked so well she's fooled her doctor into thinking she's critically ill right now," I said. I was getting exasperated. Besides I was nervous. The window was open just a little, and the curtain kept moving, as if someone was touching it.

"But she could have worn the coat—she's the only one except yourself," he persisted.

"How about her feet?" I asked.

"I couldn't see her feet," he said, "because the coat was long, sort of trailing, a little train or whatever you call it, in back. Why, what about her feet? Oh, I get it. It couldn't have been Emilie because she's too tall for your coat to hit the ground on her!"

"It came way above her ankles when she did wear it," I said. "It showed two or three inches of her pajamas and slippers. It trails on me. So Emilie's out. That just leaves . . . me!"

Chris handed me my untouched glass.

"Here, drink it," he said. "You need it. You're the color of a corpse yourself."

"I don't want it," I said stubbornly, but I couldn't keep my hand from shaking and I spilled some of the liquor on Jan's nice table.

We were wiping it up when we both heard footsteps in the hallway, and then Jan opened the door and came in. He was more than pleased to see us.

"We were just going," Hall said. "Oh, don't go," Jan begged. "Wait a little while. The place is haunted for me. I can't stay here alone any more. I'm getting so I hear noises, like Mary does. The boards squeak, and the windows rattle, and sometimes I think the curtains move. I'm afraid I'm going to have to give up and look for another studio. But I love this place."

He looked around sadly. "In spite of everything I still love it. It has been home for so long."

"Chris and I were talking about it," I said. "I know you've been through it all with the police, but what do you think? Whom do you think Gil Castle came here to meet? Chris knows that it was a girl, a girl with whom he was going to break. Could it have been someone who knows you, one of your pupils? Isn't there one of them who might have known Castle too? Or someone who knew that you were going away, and knew that you don't lock the door?"

Jan took the drink that Chris handed him, and finished it before he answered. "Of course, I have some society women, and some young girls, too. The police have the list. I think we figured twenty-six possibilities. And as for my-one knowing that I was to be away, it was in the papers. I suppose all the music-minded who follow the programs know that I was booked for the Hollywood Bowl that night. And the key—I had ten extras at one time, but I don't know where they all are now, and everyone knows I don't lock the door. I can't give keys to all my pupils and friends, so it is more convenient to leave the door unlatched."

"If I had some of the things in this room, I'd keep it locked," Chris said thoughtfully. "For some of these things must be worth a lot of money. Hasn't it ever occurred to you that someone might walk off with a silver candlestick or a tapestry or a painting?"

Jan smiled. "I've lost a lot of sheet music, and those coasters with my monogram on them—I can't keep them at all. I think the ladies take them for souvenirs. But that's all. In all the years I have lost nothing of consequence."

"Now, these women," Chris said. "Any of them come here in dinner clothes—long skirts—evening wraps?"

"For parties, yes—why not?"

"No, I mean for lessons—just casually, just happen to dress up—"

"In the middle of the day?"

"No, at night."

Chris was so persistent. I didn't blame Jan for getting annoyed. He reached for his hat. "Now if you are going to talk about that miserable thing any more I'm going to leave. No, I don't give night lessons to ladies of leisure. To business people only, and those business women do not come dressed up in evening clothes. How silly! But come, both of you, let us leave this unhappy place. Let us go up to the Top of the Mark, and forget all this."

"O. K.," Hall said. "Let's go on up and get Peggy."

Both Jan and I looked a little nervous at that because of the event of the afternoon, but Peg was in fine spirits when Chris came back with her, and though it seems queer to tell it, in the midst of all the misery we were living in, we all had a grand time, especially Peg.

She looked particularly nice in a new little flowery toque with a lot of veil on it and flat-heeled sandals so that she didn't tower more than half a head above Jan. Of course people recognized Jan and pointed him out and looked at Peg, and she loved that.

We ended up in a night club in Chinatown, and got home around two, with both Chris and Jan as a bodyguard to pilot us up the dark stairs.

Peg was brave as a lion, not afraid of anything any more, and wanted the lights off, but I held out for at least one burning in the living room and a chair under the doorknob. Even then I was afraid to go to sleep until it was light. I kept going over and over the things that Chris had told me, and trying to figure it out.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Marjorie Main, who has heckled Wallace Beery comically in recent pictures, comes into her own in a role that might have been specially written for her, as the redoubtable Letitia Carberry in "Tish," based on Mary Roberts Rinehart's beloved fiction character and now playing at the Grand Theatre.

As the domineering spinster of the Rinehart stories, she is teamed with ZaSu Pitts and Aline MacMahon. The three cronies decide to do a little matchmaking, believing that Lee Bowman and Susan Peters ought to fall in love, arrange a camping trip, and go "hunting" and fishing to leave them alone together.

RITZ THEATRE

Offering high-gear entertainment to motion picture fans who prefer spine-tingling thrills with their romance, "Powder Town" occupied the screen at the Ritz Theatre last night.

Laughter in large quantities was dished out last night at the Ritz Theatre when "Henry and Dizzy," with Jimmy Lydon as Henry and Charles Smith as Dizzy appeared.

Gov. James Urges Election of General Martin in War Crisis

under an avalanche of abuse and falsehood?"

General Martin and the Republicans, he said, are pledged to honest, competent and prudent management of State affairs.

"Clair Ross' record in office," he continued, "and his evasions and distortions in this campaign, his stressing of hatreds and jealousies and disunity—all these proclaim him the enemy of good government and the spokesman of political greed."

Ross, he said, was being backed by the "same old Democratic gang," which he named as David Lawrence, in the western part of the State, and "the gold dust twins in the East," J. David Stern and Albert M. Greenfield.

He condemned what he called the "same old unholy alliances—Democratic politicians plus contractor bosses; Democratic politicians plus special interest groups; Democratic politicians plus the patronage leeches who would once again drain the State treasury dry."

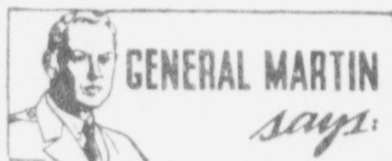

PENNA. FARM ROUNDUP

By William Brockman

1 N. S. Staff Correspondent
HARRISBURG, Oct. 29 — (INS) — Pennsylvania hens cackled to the tune of 138,000,000 eggs during September. Under the impetus of the war effort, egg production for that month was four per cent. higher than during the same period in 1941. Production for the first three quarters of this year likewise was favorable, for it increased 11 per cent. over that of last year, the Department of Agriculture disclosed. Government purchases in September for lend-lease included approximately 12,000 cases, the Department added, pointing out that the principal Federal buying has been of dried eggs, which for the month amounted to approximately 10,000,000 pounds.

Hens are not the only record-breakers on Pennsylvania farms, for cows, too, recently established several new "highs." Most important was that for the average milk production per animal which on October 1 reached 17.6 pounds. This figure, the Federal-State crop reporting service explained, constituted the largest production per cow for that date on record. Condition of the pastures on the first of the month was good, the service added, and dairy-men reported that 56 per cent. of their feed for cows came from that source. Barn feeding, however, is rapidly increasing and indications point to a grain feeding rate on October 1 only slightly below the high record for that date set last year.

If Secretary of Agriculture John H. Light has his way, that "disastrous pest," the corn borer, will soon make his exit in Pennsylvania. Light is urging all farmers to "practice control measures in every detail" to decrease the borer's infestation in the Commonwealth. Recent surveys of the Department revealed that although there has served with approximately 100,000 of my fellow-Pennsylvanians. We were all soldiers together. If you know a soldier who served with me—and you must know one or more—ask him about my record. I will be glad to stand upon the judgment of my comrades-in-arms.

"And when I am Governor I will, with your cooperation, do everything that is humanly possible to help our soldiers. For we can all help. We can help by keeping up the morale of our troops. No week should pass when a fighting man does not have a letter from home. We can help by showing our soldiers on furlough that we appreciate what they are doing for us. They are our blood and kin. They are your boy and my boy and the boy of our neighbors.

"And let us remember that we must keep the home country fit for free men and brave men when they come back.

been an over-all reduction in the worm's prevalence, many areas in Pennsylvania which have never been affected by the borer were greatly infested during the past summer. Farmers should do all in their power "to prevent the spread of this disastrous pest which can and in many cases does cause destruction of entire fields of our most important crop." Light added "Control measures to be effective must be practiced by all farmers and should be done religiously to prevent the serious consequences which this pest can cause." Since the borer spends the winter in corn and thick-stemmed weeds, he pointed out, the destruction of those harboring places constitutes the best known means of control. This destruction can be accomplished by burning, shredding and disposing of the stalks through manure heaps, Light asserted.

To insure against food shortages, J. H. Wood, regional director of the Farm Security Administration, is urging eastern growers to produce bigger and better crops. "We are finding it ever more important to transport troops and munitions instead of food," he declared. "Thus it becomes imperative that farmers grow more to take care of a greater percentage of the needs of our eastern cities." Pointing out that the railroads are doing "an excellent job," Wood warned, "If communications for any reason were disrupted for any length of time, our Eastern people would feel food shortages keenly."

Rear Admiral Noyes, of The Ill-Fated Wasp Reported Safe

reported that the Nipponese had been forced to slow down temporarily at least—their all-out drive to recapture Guadalcanal.

The Navy reported that on the night of October 26-27 American forces on Guadalcanal repulsed several small-scale enemy thrusts against U. S. positions.

At the same time the Navy said that enemy losses in men and equipment since heavy Japanese ground attacks began October 23, "have been very heavy as compared to our own."

There were no further reports concerning possible developments following the week-end sea-air battle north-east of Guadalcanal in which both sides suffered severe damage.

Naval spokesmen asserted, however, that this did not mean the huge Nipponese fleet had withdrawn from the battle. Both sides were believed to be maneuvering for further blows that might prove decisive.

Ferocity of the two-day week-end engagement was indicated by the fact that the Japanese lost two destroyers, and had one destroyer, four cruisers, two aircraft carriers and one battleship damaged.

Known American losses were: Large destroyer, one large fleet tug and one patrol boat sunk and one aircraft carrier damaged severely, plus an undisclosed number of vessels hit.

Japanese sea superiority since the beginning of the Solomon campaign was shown by the fact that American losses resulted largely from Japanese warship action whereas damage to the enemy was inflicted mostly by U. S. land and carrier-based planes.

Since the U. S. forces captured Guadalcanal from the Japanese, announced American losses have been one carrier, three cruisers, six destroyers and four transports sunk, plus one carrier and an undisclosed number of vessels damaged.

During the same period Japan reportedly lost one cruiser, eight destroyers and three transports for a total of 12. However, three other enemy vessels were listed as probably sunk and 57 as damaged and it was believed that many of these may have been destroyed.

Most serious to both sides has been the damage inflicted on aircraft carriers which are vital to continued offensive operations across the vast Pacific.

America lost the valuable carrier Wasp while an unidentified second carrier was reported "severely damaged" and therefore must be considered out of action.

Japan during the same period has had four aircraft carriers damaged, at least two of them so badly that they may be considered lost or useless for sometime to come.

REASON FOR MUTTON

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA—(INS)—Here's why mutton appears so often on the menu of American soldiers serving in Australia.

This continent has 112,000,000 sheep—sixteen for every person, and twice as many as the United States. Before the war most of Australia's lamb and mutton was exported to England, but shipping restrictions have flooded the home market.

AUSTIN, Tex.—(INS)—The pinch of restricted use of motor cars by civilians has not yet been reflected in production reports filed by Texas operators, the Railroad Commission's monthly production report shows.

The report covering August, just issued, shows that the state as a whole, and individual operators, fared almost as well during the month as during the same month of 1941.

The Treasury Department's War Savings Staff and the United States Office of Education salutes the schools of America for the magnificent job they have done in mobilizing their pupils, teachers and their communities for wartime service, examples of which are shown above. To give recognition to this service, the two Federal agencies have organized a Schools-at-War program designed

(1) to encourage each school to further develop coordinated war services best suited to its community needs and resources; (2) to make the American public see and appreciate the variety of and value of school war services by a series of local and state exhibits, ending in a national exhibition of AMERICA'S SCHOOLS AT WAR; (3) to give recognition through special awards to schools enlisting in the Schools-at-War program. The main award will be an original brick from Independence Hall, enclosed in an electrically lighted display case which will also contain a replica of the liberty shrine in Philadelphia. One of these awards will go to each state for temporary exhibition in participating schools and then permanent display in the state capital.

NEWTOWN MAN IS AUTHOR OF MANY SONGS FOR SERVICE

His Son, Lt. Ormsby Dolph,
Now On Desert Maneuvers
In California

TANK CORPS SONG

Family Located on Farm Near Newtown About One Year Ago

NEWTOWN, Oct. 29.—A Newtown man, in the U. S. Army, is now on maneuvers in the California desert. He is Lt. Ormsby Dolph, who was recently commissioned a first lieutenant. Lt. Dolph, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dolph, Newtown. In honor of his son, Mr. Dolph wrote for the tank corps the song "Roll, Tanks, Roll." Another of his songs "Look Out Below," has been designated as the official song of the paratroopers. The elder Dolph is a radio executive with offices in New York City.

Dolph has written a song for the army engineers, as well as one for the Merchant Marine, which was sung by the Fred Waring chorus on the March of Time program last week.

Besides Lieutenant Dolph, Mr. and Mrs. Dolph have four other children. Mrs. Dolph is active in the Bucks County Office of Civilian Defense. One daughter, Miss Margaret Dolph, has a position at George School, assisting in the girls' physical education department and with dramatics. Another daughter, Miss Susan Dolph, has a position with the Newtown Rationing Board, and two younger sons are students at George School.

The Dolphs purchased a farm outside of Newtown about a year ago.

Green Tinged Oranges Are Fully Ripe

In the early Autumn the California Valencia variety of orange has a mysterious change of color which growers call the "Green Tinge Mystery." Strange as it may seem, the oranges that look the least ripe are often juicier and sweeter than the golden globes of Spring and Summer. The Autumn green-tinged orange is a fully ripe orange that was once fully colored, but was allowed to hang on its tree until the sun, or something, removed some of the reddish pigment from the outermost layer of skin so that the fruit reverted to yellowish green or greenish yellow.

Don't pass by this fruit with the greenish tinge. It is ripe, filled with necessary vitamins and may be turned at any time into hundreds of healthful dainties like the following:

Chef's Salad Bowl
(Serves 6-8)
2 cups orange slices
1/2 cup ham slivers
1/2 cup celery pieces
3 cups mixed salad greens; any of the following: lettuce, romaine, watercress, spinach, or chicory
2 hard cooked eggs
1/2 cup Lemon French Dressing
Pimiento
Lightly toss orange slices, ham, celery, and greens together with the dressing. Garnish with additional orange slices, hard cooked egg, and strips of pimiento.

Sunkist Appetizer Salad
6 oranges
Romaine or other crisp salad greens
1 3-ounce package Philadelphia cream cheese
1 teaspoon horseradish
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/4 cup salad oil
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon honey
Grate outer peel from two oranges. With a sharp knife, remove all outer skin and membrane from oranges. Cut on either side of each dividing membrane and remove meat, section by section. Arrange sections in two rows in fan pattern on four individual salad plates. Cover with salad greens. Moisten cream cheese with a little horseradish and just enough orange juice to form into balls. Roll these in grated orange peel. Garnish each salad with two or three balls. Serve with dressing made by blending lemon juice, oil and seasonings.

YOU ARE ON THE FIRING LINE NOVEMBER 3RD. THEN IS THE TIME TO CHOOSE YOUR REPRESENTATIVES

AT WASHINGTON AND HARRISBURG

PUT YOUR TRUST IN REPUBLICANISM AND VOTE STRAIGHT REPUBLICAN ON TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3RD.

DECIDING OUR GOVERNMENTAL POLICIES BY VOTING IS ONE OF THE CHERISHED GUARANTEES UNDER OUR CONSTITUTION. THE PRESENT WAR IS BEING WAGED PRIMARILY TO SAFEGUARD FOR US THE CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS ALREADY POSSESSED. NEVER IN THE LIFE OF OUR REPUBLIC WAS THE OUTCOME OF AN ELECTION MORE IMPORTANT TO EVERY CITIZEN, PARTICULARLY TO THE BOYS IN UNIFORM. THEY ARE FIGHTING THE WORLD BATTLE 365 DAYS OF THE YEAR. IS IT TOO MUCH TO ASK THAT YOU GIVE ONE DAY ON THE HOME FRONT?

The issues to be settled on November 3rd next will vitally affect you and yours far into the future. Those who are to represent you in Washington and at Harrisburg should be carefully selected. You will vote to elect one Congressman-at-Large from Pennsylvania and one Congressman locally. These two men for two years will help determine the conduct of the war and what burdens will be laid upon you in taxation and service to make the war effort successful.

In Bucks County, you will elect your representative to the State Senate of Pennsylvania, one of the fifty members of that body, and two of the Representatives in the lower house of the General Assembly. These two bodies, with the Chief Executive of the Commonwealth, will determine what laws shall be placed upon the Statute books of Pennsylvania in the next two years, and what the State's contribution shall be to the war effort in this the greatest industrial state in the Union.

The Republican Party is pledged, and so are its candidates, to an all-out support of the war effort both at Washington and Harrisburg. They are pledged to decent, clean government and economical expenditures for civilian purposes so that the greatest amount possible may be available for war.

The most important office to be filled is that of Governor, who, for the next four years will lead this Commonwealth. Almost every problem that will confront him will be related to the war. The Republican Party, cognizant of the tremendous responsibilities that will confront him, has selected General Edward Martin. He will bring to that office forty-four years training in military affairs including participation in the Spanish American War, the Mexican incident and the leadership of troops on the front line in France in World War I, where he was gassed, twice wounded and twice decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross. He is equally conversant with our civilian problems having served as Auditor General and State Treasurer of Pennsylvania to which offices he was elected as the Republican candidate with majorities in each instance of a few thousand votes less than a million.

The PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER editorially on Sunday, October 18, summarized the campaign in these words:

"Pennsylvania has an opportunity of placing in the Governor's office precisely the right man at precisely the right time. To fit Pennsylvania's arsenal tightly and concretely into the structure of America at war we need General Martin as Governor."

The ballot below will show you the candidates for whom you vote when you vote a straight Republican ticket thus—

Serve Apples As Raw Fruit Or Cooked In New And Tempting Dishes

Apple pie still has the reputation of being the national dessert in good old U. S. A. Can you remember the delicious smell in the kitchen as your mother took the crispy, browned pies from the oven?

Some favor their raw use; another school of thought insists that cooking brings out the best in an apple. But whatever form you prefer, this will be apple year for much less dried fruit will be available. Since apples are grown in nearly every part of the country, in most instances very little shipping is required to bring them to your door. This is a distinct advantage since the country needs every bit of its transportation for war supplies.

Hot baked apple dishes are not only good in themselves but they help save fuel because they can be tucked into the oven while it's in use for other dishes in the same meal. Some of these apple dishes can be served with the main course while the sweeter ones go better at the end of the meal as dessert. Honey, sorghum, corn or maple syrup can be used for part or all of the sweetening in several of the recipes given below. Keep the oven temperature moderate while the fruit dish is cooking.

Baked Apples

Wash the apples and core them without cutting through the blossom end. Place in a baking dish. Lightly grease. Fill the holes with syrup. Add a few chopped nuts, if you like. Cover the dish. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until the apples are soft. Serve hot or cold, with or without cream.

Scalloped Apples

Pare, core, and slice tart, firm apples. Place a layer of the sliced apples in a baking dish, sprinkle lightly with sugar, and dot with butter or well-flavored fat. If the fat has no salt, add a few grains. Put in another layer of apples and press down. Add more seasoning, and repeat until the dish is heaping full. Cover and cook slowly for about an hour in a moderate oven. Then remove the cover, spread buttered bread crumbs over the top, and return to the oven to brown the crumbs. Scalloped apples are especially good served hot with the main course of a meal.

Scalloped Apples and Cabbage
In this recipe two old standbys form a grand combination of new favor that goes well with almost any main course. In a greased baking dish, place alternate layers of apples and cabbage, using twice as much cabbage as apples. Season each layer with salt and fat, and sprinkle a very little sugar on the apples—a teaspoonful is enough for a quart of sliced apples. Spread buttered crumbs over the last layer and bake for 45 minutes in a moderate oven.

Serve Nourishing Soup For Cold November Days

For the duration. Or at least quite a lot of it will be, for it is, even now, much more difficult to find the canned kinds you are accustomed to using, and some of them have patriotically vanished from the shelves of your local store. Because tin must preserve foods that are vital to the life of each soldier on foreign battlefields, the housewife gladly turns to brewing the family supply on the kitchen range. As long as it is done at home, it is practical to make a filling soup so that it will make the main dish for a nourishing lunch. It is always easier to get by without meat when the family has eaten its fill of savory soup. So why not try a good

Vegetable Chowder

Milk makes this soup more nourishing than soup made with water only.

and you can take advantage of an ample supply of evaporated milk by mixing it cup for cup with water. (Use in the same way for any cream vegetable soup or for corn or fish chowders.)

- 1 medium-sized onion
- 2 small carrots
- 1 turnip
- 1 medium-sized potato
- 1 small green pepper
- 2 stalks of celery and leaves
- 1 cup tomato juice and pulp
- 3 cups hot milk

You Can Win A $25 War Savings Bond

BY WRITING 25 WORDS OR LESS
JUST FINISH THIS SENTENCE:

"My family is drinking more milk today because"

Longer, harder working hours, changed living habits, tenseness over war news—all tend to set people's nerves "on edge" these days. You can help lick those "war nerves" by eating balanced menus—including plenty of milk.

Milk provides many vitamins and minerals to promote vigorous health. One of the most important of these is calcium. This vital mineral reduces the irritability of nerves and relaxes muscles. And milk contains several times as much calcium as any other common food.

Hundreds of Bristol families are now building up their efficiency by drinking more milk. You may win a $25 War Savings Bond by finishing the above sentence, telling your ideas on this all-important subject.

If milk has not yet become a favorite food with your family, tempt them with tastier Supplee Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin D Milk. Truly delicious. Order from your Supplee milkman, your neighborhood store, or phone Bristol 2117.

Model American Diets Feature Milk

To build health and citizen stamina, leading nutritionists have created simple, easy diets to be followed in every home. Notice particularly that milk is No. 1 on every one—at least a pint daily for every adult—a quart for each child. Milk can't do the whole job by any means, but it's No. 1 on any adequate diet.

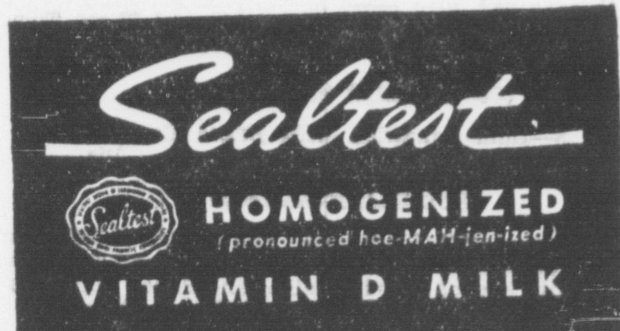

*One pint of milk supplies an adult's daily requirements of the following food elements in approximately the proportions shown: Calcium, 7/10 of all required; Vitamin A, 1/5; Vitamin B1, 1/7; Vitamin B2, 2/5; Protein, 1/4; Nicotin, 1/7; Iron, 1/12; Calories, 1/9.

BENSALEM HIGH GRID DERS TO OPPOSE MORRISVILLE ELEVEN IN TILT TO BE PLAYED AT CORNWELLS

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 29.—Coach "Woody" Wetherhold's Bensalem Township high school gridgers will play their first home game of the season Saturday afternoon when it lines up against the Morrisville High School boys in a Lower Bucks County League tilt.

Wetherhold's minions have been playing their games on foreign soil, meeting St. Francis, Bristol, and Jenkintown. The team won over St. Francis and Jenkintown and dropped a verdict to the Bristol High team. Bristol High is the only team to score on the Owls this season. Two other games on the Bensalem schedule, Upper Moreland, and St. Francis, were called off.

Although he lacks an abundance of material, Coach Wetherhold has quality in his boys. He has the strongest aerial attack of all scholastic teams in this section. This was proven in the Bristol tilt when six first downs were made via the air and again at Jenkintown when six more first downs were added to the credit of the air attack. The Owls made ten first downs at Jenkintown. In the Bristol tilt, the Wetherholdmen completed four consecutive first downs to carry the ball from their own 9 yard line to the Bristol 27, only to have Hajducek intercept a pass on the Bristol nine yard line.

Bensalem has one of the best backs in the lower Bucks area in Hughie Deans. Deans was unable to break loose against Bristol but it was his heaving of the pass correctly and the catching of both Adrian and Robinson, both Bensalem ends, that threatened Bristol. In the Jenkintown tilt, Deans did practically everything needed offensively and on one occasion broke loose for an 81 yard run for a touchdown only to have the play recalled because a Bensalem lineman was detected holding.

Johnny Dean, George Hutton and Horace Vinson complete the remainder of the Owls' backfield and all deserve due credit for the success of the Owl team for they all block nicely and when called upon for necessary yardage can be depended upon for a few yards. Vinson does the booting for the team.

At the wing position, Wetherhold has two good ball snatchers in Adrian and Sammy Robinson. Robinson is also credited with blocking the kick and recovering for Bensalem at Jenkintown which led to the only score of the game. The other wingman, Adrian did all that ball-catching of the aerials in the Bristol tilt, even catching them when entirely surrounded by Bristol players.

The Gieges brothers, Elmer and George, fill up a nice hole in the Bensalem line as guard and center, respectively. Rief is the other guard on the team while the tackle positions are occupied by C. Werler and L. Johnson.

Coach Wetherhold has been holding workouts daily when the weather permits and only Tuesday afternoon was drilling his team on the defense to employ against Morrisville. Several Bensalem players were at the Morrisville game against Bristol and watched for weaknesses in the Morrisville set-up which they plan to use for good offensive power. Coach Wetherhold must feel that the Bulldogs are weak on forwards for he stressed most of his practice on completing forward passes.

Morrisville finally broke into the win column last week when it topped Bristol 14-0. Previous to that Johnny Hoffman's boys had lost three games and deadlocked one.

Hoffman has one of the fastest backs in this end of the county in Matt Phillips. It was Phillips who did the bulk of the ball carrying against the Bunnies and he gained considerably. When Phillips was watched closely the ball was passed to either Pratt or Marsh although the latter is used mostly on line plays. Phillips does the ball-passing and the player to watch on the receiving ends of the plays is Need. Need has several opportunities to complete passes against Bristol but dropped two throws and was open on the other attempts.

Querns and Schurer are the Morrisville ends while Murray and Bleasdale usually start at the tackle positions. The guards are Yocum and Lorimer while the center position is taken care of by Gentry.

This is the first Lower Bucks County League contest for the Bulldogs as last week's tilt with Bristol was not a league game. A victory for the Hoffman-coached lads will put them in a deadlock with Bristol for first place.

Great A&P is Marking 83rd Anniversary of Firm

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—Efficient distribution of the nation's food supply is essential in order that our armed forces, our Allies and the home front will obtain the maximum benefits of American farmers' record 1942 production. L. A. Mullen, vice-president of the Philadelphia unit of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, declared today.

Announcing the local celebration of the company's 83rd anniversary, Mr. Mullen said that the men who handle the nation's food must see that not a pound of this important weapon of war is wasted. "This is in line with the policy traditional with A&P ever since George Huntington Hartford founded the company back in 1859," Mullen added. "Our policy of shortening the distance between farm and family dinner table by eliminating unnecessary marketing steps helps conserve food by cutting out the many needless handlings which result in much waste and spoilage of food."

Mr. Mullen pointed out that this straight-line marketing system also shortens the transportation time and thus releases vital railway and truck equipment for movement of other war materials. "Today more than ever before," he said, "speed is the vital factor in winning a war and fast, efficient methods of food distribution are as important to war production on the home front as the most modern weapons of battle warfare are to our men on the battlefronts." Mr. Mullen gave an anniversary salute to the more than 10,000 A&P employees now serving in the armed forces of the United States and Canada and pledged that "those of us still at home will continue to do all we can to back them up."

In addition to its role in the war effort, Mullen said straight-line marketing also means greater returns to growers and less costs to consumers. He cited the results achieved by A&P in cutting the cost of distributing fresh produce and vegetables as an example of cost.

what can be accomplished through efficient handling of farm products. "During the four years from 1937 to 1941, A&P reduced its buying and retailing expenses in connection with fresh fruits and vegetables 29 per cent, damage and spoilage 13 per cent, and warehouse and cartage expenses 17 per cent," he said. "The savings thus achieved have been passed on to consumers, growers and shippers."

GENERAL MARTIN says:

"Let there be no mistake about the grim truth that we are in peril and that all of us must either work or fight, and that all of us must pray as we work and as we fight."

Work or Fight

"Our way of life must triumph or it must die. There is no half-way house. There can be no compromise with Destiny; no covenants with death."

"We are fighting actually and literally for our lives and for everything we hold dear in our lives."

"As a soldier, and as a Governor who knows the needs of war, I promise you I'll give everything I've got to this job, and I'll do my best to help you and Pennsylvania give everything our great and productive Commonwealth can offer."
